HISTORY OF CHIGI TOWER

The medioeval village of San Gimignano (UNESCO Heritage) holds three hundred residences, including one of the most internationally famous towers. Originally owned by the Useppi family, which later became the property of the family Chigi Saracini family, is now owned by the Giachi Family.

The Chigi Tower is one of the fourteen historical towers still left in San Gimignano, located in the Piazza del Duomo and dates back to 1280.

The first three floors are covered with stones, with openings to illuminate the low lying arches. On the first floor there is a typical portal accessible via stairs, a legacy of the struggles of medieval life, when they slept in secure buildings with retractable ladders.

The tower is flanked by medieval buildings of particular value for the presence of mullioned windows with workmanship
